The Mammoth Cave.
Extract from a Private Letter.

We groped about for many hours in this wonderful place. I never saw anything like it. The freaks of nature displayed here are very strange, and strike the beholder with awe. But the air in some parts of the cave is close and stifling, and when we came out I found myself saddled with a terrible fever, which entirely prostrated me. The physician had never seen a case like it before, and no remedy he prescribed seemed to do the least good. My life was despaired of. Mrs Wilson, with whom I was residing, had in the house a bottle of Plantation Bitters and she insisted I should try it, for she said she knew it to be a certain cure in all cases of fever, debility, ague and dyspepsia, &c. I had but little faith, but finally consented to try it as a last resort. In less than three hours after the first dose my fever left me; in two days I was sitting up, and before Saturday night I was as well as ever. I tell you all this that you may know how to act in any case of fever, or any similar disease. I firmly believe the Plantation bitters saved my life. * *
* * In my next I will tell you about the cave in detail.

THE NURSERY.—We present you this month something very near our ideal of an illustrated child's magazine. We mean to give your children the very best that money can procure, both in art and in letters. The experiment is at least worth trying But to enable us to do this without loss, and to keep the Nursery up to the standard we aim at, we need a circulation of at least fifty thousand. You can help us to get this by simply showing the present number, and making the work known. Your next neighbor, with children to educate, may not be aware of its existence. Tell him of it; bid him send for a specimen, or show him your own copy, and you can do this, with very little trouble, advertise us, which is all that our enterprise wants. Do this and you shall surely have the benefit of it in something better and still better for your children. Respectfully, John L. Shorey, Publisher of the Nursery. Boston.

YOUNG AMERICA.—This sprightly little magazine has entered prosperously upon the third year of its existence, and become an indispensable visitor in all those households where it is known. There are many other juvenile periodicals, some older, some younger than this popular favorite, but there are none for the children like darling Young America, so we must, perforce believe it to be the best, and congratulate the publisher on the great success of his little undertaking. $1,50 yearly. Published at 838 Broadway, N Y.

State Temperance Convention.

Bro. Butler of that spirited paper, The Oxford Citizen, don't express a very exalted opinion of the recent Ohio State Temperance Convention at Columbus. He very truly thinks it a tame, conservative, hesitating, and timid affair. Such action as he describes will never affect intemperance seriously. Bold and fearless measures for the right will insure victory. This McClellan strategy, boasted in promises during the war, and not until other counsels prevailed was victory granted us, so in this temperance warfare, such hesitating measures will effect nothing. The Citizen's article is so much to the point that we give it below.

A convention of delegates from all parts of the state was held at Columbus on Wednesday and Thursday of this week. From the published proceedings we can not see that the convention has accomplished any great purpose. Radical resolutions that were offered, as a general thing, were laid on the table, or met with such opposition that the movers lost all heart and allowed them to be kicked over without any resistance. A lot of old grannies get together at these conventions, and all their speeches and votes would lead one to suppose that the temperance men must place themselves under the feet of the whisky ring; and instead of coming out boldly, and declaring that political action is the one thing necessary to make the cause of temperance triumphant, they pander to existing parties and will vote for any body nominated by their caucuses rather than bolt the ticket. While temperance men act in this manner we can never make the existing political parties respect our sentiments; nor will they ever give us candidates for office so long as we are to be lead by them.

President Merrick, of Delaware, seems to be one of this class who are fearful that political action by temperance men will not accomplish any good results, and he cites instances from other states to prove his position. Of course it is so, and is likely to continue so while men of influence show by their actions that they will not dare to risk their chances with a temperance party. Had the old anti-slavery party been led by such men, slavery would never have been fearful of the overthrow of their cherished institution. The whisky ring, and the existing political parties, will no doubt applaud the good sense of the majority who voted against the organization of a separate party, the platform of which was to be on a temperance basis.

The first resolution adopted declares that the sale of liquors should be prohibited by law, and that a chief end of all temperance organizations should be to prepare the public mind for the enactment and efficient execution of such a law. This was adopted because it is very non-committal.

Then followed something more to the point—a resolution that would carry out the spirit of the above. But it was defeated by a vote of thirty-two against twenty-two. Here is the resolution:

Resolved, That for the purpose of accomplishing this object, we recommend the immediate organization of an independent political party in Ohio, whose avowed and sole object shall be to procure the enactment of laws prohibiting the manufacture of and traffic in all intoxicating liquors, except such as are necessary for manufacturing and medicial purposes.

Two substitutes were offered to the above, but as they were of the same spirit we think it unnecessary to publish them. They, however, like the original, were voted down. Considerable discussion seems to have taken place on the political action question, and we find president Merrick, S S Calkins, of Oberlin, strong in their opposition. The latter gentleman declared that he would do all in his power to secure the nomination of temperance men, but he would not pledge himself to vote for a man simply because he is a temperance man.

Dr L Barnes, of Delaware, offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That the medicinal use of alcohol is an evil, little, if any less than the sale of it as a beverage.

Even this was considered too strong for this conservative temperance convention, and it was voted to lay it on the table.

Conservatism on the temperance question is all that the liquor sellers desire, and they have no objection to the adoption of simple resolutions so long as no effort is made to establish a political party. The Columbus convention in this respect was a success.

Uncle Billy's Speech.

When I was a drunkard, I could never get my barn more than half filled. The first year after I signed the pledge I filled my barn; the second year I filled my barn and had two stacks; this year I filled my barn and have four stacks When I was a drunkard I owned only one poor old cow, and I think she must have been ashamed of me, for she was red in the face; now I own five good cows, and I own three as good horses as ever looked through a collar. When I was a drunkard I trudged from place to place on foot; now I can ride in a carriage of my own When I was a drunkard, I was three hundred dollars in debt; since I signed the pledge I have paid that debt, and have purchased two hundred acres of wild land, and I have the deed in my possession; two of my sons who are teetotalers, are living on that lot. When I was a drunkard, I used to swear; I have ceased to be profane. The last year of my drunkenness my doctor's bill was thirty dollars; since I signed the pledge, I have not been called on to expend a red cent for medicine. I am not a poet, but I have put my farewell to rum in verse:

Farewell, drinks, so nigh and handy,
Farewell, gin, and rum and brandy;
Farewell, empty pots and kettles:
Farewell, cupboards without 'vittals,'
Farewell, rooms free to all weathers:
Farewell, beds that have no feathers;
Farewell, rooms that need a swab file;
Farewell, yards that have no wood pile;
Farewell, faded vests and breeches;
Farewell, coats more holes than stitches;
Farewell, hats that have no rims on;
Farewell, faces red as crimson;
Farewell, tubs that have no bacon;
Farewell, ways that I've forsaken;
Farewell, broken chairs and tables;
Farewell, dwellings worse than stables;
Farewell, oaths that I have spoken;
Farewell, vows that I have broken;
Farewell, landlords and bar-tenders;
Farewell, all blue-devil senders.

He Drinks.

How ominous the sentence falls! How we pause in conversation and ejaculate—it's a pitty! How his mother hopes he will not as he grows older; and his sisters persuade themselves that it is only a few wild oats that he is sowing. And yet the old men shake their heads and feel gloomy when they think of it. Young men, just commencing life buoyant with hope, don't drink. You are freighted with a precious cargo. The hopes of your old parents, of your sisters, of your wives of your children—all are laid upon you. In you the aged live over again their young days; through you only can the weary one obtain a position in society; and from the level on which you place them, must your children go into the great struggle of life.

Make Suffrage and Amnesty Universal.

The following letter from John G. Whittier, the poet, was read at the celebration of Forefatners' Day, in Washington, on the 22d:

AMESBURY, 18th of the 12th month, '68, R D Muzzy, Esq:

DEAR FRIEND: I cannot at such a brief notice do more than express my hearty sympathy with your festival, and the hope that you may not only do justice to the good old New England dishes on your table, but to the faith, courage and self-sacrifice, and reverence of the days when

"——an honest grace would hold
Till the hot pudding grew at heart a cold."

Quaker as I am by birth and connec-I have the heartiest respect for the sterling virtues of the Puritans. I used to feel somewhat hardly toward them for their treatment of my religious predecessors, but I have learned to judge them more leniently. Their persecution was simply a matter of logical sequence. If I really believed as they did, that the precise dogmas of my creed were essential to salvation, and that the slightest deviation from them meant nothing less than eternal torment, I might be tempted from sheer humanity to do as they did. At any rate charges of intolerance can scarcely be urged against New England at this time. Whatever we may have been formerly, we are no longer what Dr Johnson said he liked—good haters. Calvinism listens to Emerson's radicalism, to Parker and Bushnell, and in no case is the self-respecting individuality of the speaker a cause of complaint. Neither politics nor theology are with us grounds for personal animosity. A southern planter, who visited Boston just before the attack on Fort Sumter, said to me; I thought you Yankees hated us as badly as we hate you, but I'll be hanged if I can see that you hate us at all! The planter was right. Even now much as we have suffered from the most causeless rebellion since Satan's revolt in Heaven, clothed as so many of our homes are in mourning for the slain of our people, we certainly have no hatred for the inhabitants of the south. On the contrary we are thankful for any opportunity of aiding them in restoring their waste places. I have no doubt but at this moment a majority of our people would heartily agree with me in supporting the motion just made by a New England senator to remove the disabilities of those at present disfranchised in the revolted states, and make suffrage universal.

You do well, then, to keep alive the memories of the old faith. Puritanism, with all abatements for its faults, is not a thing to be ashamed of. Of it a poetical Bostonian, the precursor of Lowell and and Holmes and Longfellow, said wisely and well, nearly two centuries ago:

"At this tree's foot Astrea sits and sings
And waters it, whence upright justice springs;
Which yearly shoots forth laws and liberties,
That no man's will or wit may tyranize.
True Liberty's there ripe, where all confess
They may do all they will to save wickedness,
Peace is another fruit which that tree bears—
The chiefest garland that the country wears.
Forsaken thou, Time's daughter, groweth here
More precious fruit what tree did ever bear?
Whose pleasant gifts aloft has many fed,
And what falls down knocks Error on the head.'

May that goodly tree which the fathers planted, its strong old stock engrafted with the liberal ideas of our age, grow and overshadow the land, and wherever its shadows falls may its leaves be leaves of healing.
JOHN G. WHITTIER.

DEAR COMMERCIAL:—Having been favored with a copy of the Banner of Light, bearing the date of December 26th, I see what claims to be a communication from Abraham Lincoln to J W Edmonds, of New York, headed The Spirit of Prophecy, bearing date of November 29. What Edmonds claims he said was this:

I have long tried to gain your brain and your hand, that I might foreshadow what, to me, appears the inevitable result of the present state of things. And as nothing after all is so marvelous as human nature, and naught more intricate than the labarinthal windings of an intuitive man's thoughts and acts, I shall prophecy that the next president will astonish the world, as well as the nation over which he has been chosen to preside, by his peculiar sagacity and the selection of his cabinet.

I found him entirely free from the control of magnetic influences which too often hold the weak and destroy individuality by merging or attempting to merge, through imitation, into another. He is thoroughly himself, as the world has it, and he is iron clad, spiritually—being helped and held by an organization and a class of spirits who, as I have said are invulnerable.

He can hear the opinion of a multitude and take the most positive assurances of man's authority, and yet have his own quiet first impressions undisturbed. In this, then, he is naturally, truly great. And removed as he was from all connection and intercourse with the political world, I can say to you that the hand of God lifted him out, even as it did Oliver Cromwell, to lead the people in the smoother sea of reason and common sense.

Universal suffrage will be handled wisely, if not apparently well. And, as, Shakspeare has it,

"To this complexion must we come eventually,"

So, perchance, while it seems premature, it will also be seen by you to be the only way to settle an unpleasant matter to the south.

He will be a far more judicious adjudicator than I could have been, for he knows vastly more. And I can lift you above the miserable forebodings which selfish men prate of by assuring you that no man could have been selected through whom so just and appreciating a power could flow to his fellow men.

The subject of taxation and finance will be masterly handled, and at the close of his administration will show a degree of progress entirely marvelous, for the key note of his popularity will be economy and equality.

This is, says Mr Edmonds, the prophecy given in Lincoln's very words. Let us wait and see how nearly it will be fulfilled.

Stock.

The Pittsburgh Gazette says:

There is really very little apprehension that this railroad snatching game will be successfully played on the Ft Wayne. Co., which holds its annual meeting on the third Monday of March. But two or three, out of the twenty-four millions of this company's stock and bonds—either of which qualifies the holder to vote—are accessable to these filibusters through the ordinary channels of the stock market. At least eighty per cent. of the total capital is held in blocks, out of the market, for a permanent investment, so that no peril can come from that direction through a temporary change of ownership. Nor, in view of recent events, are the holders likely to disregard the fair warning against the probable abuse of proxies, intrusted to improper hands by such as may be unable to give their personal attendance at the meeting. Friends of the Ft. Wayne Company feel very confident that forewarned they are amply forearmed against any repetition of the C & P programme. Other companies will do equally well to heed the lessons of that experience.

Mr. Ashley's territorial bill for Alaska is said to make the boundary line run to the Artic Ocean or the North Pole. The description of our northwestern farm should be after the regular form: "Beginning at a stake standing at the northern intersection of the longitudinal lines."

Constitutional Amendment--YES.

A NEW MOVE.—We have received a copy of a call, with request to publish the same, signed by about nine reverend and twenty one honorable gentlemen—all of Ohio we take it—for a convention to be held at Columbus on Tuesday, February 2d. The object aimed at is to change the constitution of the United States so as to "secure a recognition of Almighty God and the Christian religion." We have no doubt but the movers in this work are men of upright sincerity, and that they aim to effect a good object by advocating the proposed amendment. It is a very critical question which they have broached, and one on which the greatest latitude of opinion is entertained. As it is, the constitution now guarantees the utmost freedom and liberality of religious belief, and these gentlemen, together with those who may differ with them diametrically on what are called the cardinal principles of morality and religion, are not restrained by its authority. It seems to us that the constitution, on this point, is quite good enough, and if we all lived up to its spirit and intent, our nation would be an example to all the earth. We know little of the constitutions or governments of other nations, but it seems clear to us that their experience in introducing religions tests into their organic bases has resulted in failure. The English government has an established church, but it cannot make all its subjects think alike on religious questions. The Russian government, so far as we know, is another example of this class, and Americans are not prepared to adopt its theory, much less its practice. And for centuries, ever since the days of Luther, all protestantism has been loud in its declamations against what it denominates popery, the most striking example of a union of church and state. This is a state of things for which the American people are not prepared. But it may be urged that the principles to be introduced are so general as not to admit of a difference of opinion among all truly good people. Suppose it were so (and observation teaches otherwise), and that the projected amendment were adopted, the questions of orthodoxy and heterodoxy could not be suppressed, for on points such as the trinity, the atonement, original sin, resurrection of the body, future punishment, the Sabbath and other leading theories, would cause more confusion than we have now in understanding and interpreting the constitution. Theologians would have then to discuss constitutional questions, and we all know that they differ radically on the points above noted; and in addition to these there will be a vast class of outsiders who might want to talk constitution in their favor. These are not imaginary objections to the contemplated movement, but are such as must force themselves upon the notice of even the least observing. Of course we have no objection to the friends of this change holding a convention and giving their honest views in regard to it; we hope that they will be inspired with such a spirit of toleration as may tend to harmony in their councils; but while they do so let them not forget that there are those who are equally honest and are radically opposed to any such amendment of the constitution as they propose.

Anybody who has other views of this question shall have a place in these columns.

REGISTRATION.—Senator Dangler, of Cleveland, has introduced a bill into the legisiature having for its object the prevention of election frauds, by requiring voters to register their names previous to the election. No fair minded voter will object to this; for all acknowledge there has been considerable fraud in Ohio elections, and honest men of all parties cannot but unite in devising efficient means to prevent their recurrence. Mr Dangler's bill contains numerous wholesome provisions, a prominent one of which is, that no one shall be allowed to vote unless he has complied with the law, by having his name recorded at the proper time and place previous to the election. But it seems not to please all the democracy, for their leading paper, the Cincinnati Inquirer, is terriably down on the measure. One pretense for opposition is, that it will take so much of the voter's time to merely have his name enrolled by the proper officer. And it will be interfering with the freedom of elections! As before remarked, no honest man or party will object to such a wholesome restraint upon rascality. A man's name can be written down in less than two minutes, clock time, and if he is qalified as a voter will be proud to appear in the list of honorable men. And in wont interfere with his freedom in voting for whom he choses but will be much in the way of his repeating it at half a dozen places, or that many times.

CHANGE.—If political conundrums were in order this question might be pertinent: Why is the democracy like a kelaidoscope? Answer—Because it changes oftener than the moon. The sachems of the party used to tell us that it never changed, but it does. Can't we all remember during the last presidential election what immensely big democratic gods Brick Pomeroy and August Belmont were? one for his billingsgate and the other for his money? Like the Jews of old the high priests are now crying aloud of both these democratic oracles — Crucify them! Crucify them! Can they do it? er are Brick's influence and Belmont's money too much for them? Even our Bub is down on Belmont, and when he takes such a stand there is more than one screw loose somewhere.

BOGUS LIQUORS AND THINGS.—Recent developments published in the New York World concerning modern liquors ought to be sufficient to startle the liquor guzzling public that there are not only tiny, hissing, poisoinous serpents in their drinks, but that it is even surcharged with great anacondas, boa constrictors, dragons, and full grown demons. The World here referred to has long been looked upon by many as a great poisoner itself politically, of the American people, so far as it had influence over them; but taking the course it has recently adopted, and which even Brick Pomeroy approves, in regard to the liquor question, certainly ought to go some way toward canceling its political misdeeds. To intelligent temperance men and women these statements are far from being new; indeed, they have long been familiar to the mass of the liquor despsing public; but when such an organ as the one referred to, circulating, as it does, among a class of readers heretofore indifferent, if not opposed to everything favorable to the suppression of the liquor traffic, comes forth and boldly exposes the baseness of the vile compounds sold as liquors of various names, there is room for encouragement and renewed effort. This the World is said to have done thoroughly; and not only has it shown these spurious drinks in the shape of wines, brandies, cordials, &c., but has extended its researches to ales, beers and similar slops, proving conclusively that they too are surcharged with a plenteous supply of deadly, poisonous ingredients. But this authority does not stop here in its sweeping measures of reform, for it tells of adulterated groceries of various kinds, which are aiding in diffusing and infusing poison into the systems of such as use them. Tea, coffee and many other staple articles are thus made the media in which deadly drugs are intermixed. Much of this too is familiar to many, but it is a source of sincere rejoicing that the World has taken so radical a view of the question, and is discussing it before those unused to such ideas. Still not content with exposing bogus liquors and adulterated groceries, and drugs, this paper has the credit of advancing a step further, and holds up facts to the reading public which prove that buyers are cheated in purchasing these articles by short weights and lessened measures. Let the world and the rest of mankind, as Gen. Taylor said, rejoice that good can come out of Nazareth, even when nobody looked for it. This is radicalism of the strongest kind, and we need not be surprised if both the World and Brick P. are read out of the copperhead democratic party because they are pleading for sobriety.

Washington Correspondence.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22, 1869.

There will be a good deal more opposition to Mr Jenckes's bill when it comes fairly before the house, than was anticipated a few weeks ago. Gen. Logan is preparing another elaborate speech against it, and will be supported by many influential members of both parties. The subject of so reconstructing the civil service of the government, that the people shall always be served by efficient and honest persons is of sufficient importance to engage the attention of the best minds in the country. Mr Jenckes's bill may be defective in its details, but it is right in principle. It must be evident to any man who reflects upon the matter that the present mode of making appointments for political services, and the quadrennial removal of capable men to make way for novices, are vicious and unbusiness-like. No man or firm conducting business on such a system, or rather, no system, could possibly prosper. Then how can a government? The objection of Mr Logan and his followers to Mr Jenckes's bill, that a life tenure of office is opposed to the spirit of our institutions, is weighty, and deserves careful consideration; but the objection is equally applicable to the army and navy as now organized. Surely Mr Logan does not think the liberties of the country will be more endangered by an army of quill-drivers holding office during good behavior than by the graduates of West Point and the naval school at Annapolis who also retain their positions as long as they behave themselves and can make themselves useful to their country. The fact is there is a good deal to be said on both sides of the question.

Senator Vickers of Maryland, yesterday, from the committee on the District of Columbia, reported a substitute for a bill to amend the usury laws in the District of Columbia. It does not change the rate of interest, which is six per cent, but allows special contracts for the payment of a rate not exceeding eight per cent.

The statutes of the different states, regulating the interest on moneys loaned, has been considered a safe-guard to the poor and needy. Usury, or not usury—the laws in the different states affecting the same, to the contrary, notwithstanding—when money is scarce and in consequence the need of it is great, there are numerous ways by which those who have money to loan and are disposed to receive more than the legal rate of interest, are able to override the law. For instance, you are allowed to buy a note at whatever discount you and the seller of the note agree upon. Now it is easily understood how the most needy, yet less able, are the most anxious to make notes over to a confidant to sell for them at a discount corresponding to their immediate need of money.

Secretary Browning's report on Saturday, in reference to the stationery furnished the patent office, exonerated the stationery contractors from all blame, and I noticed in the New York Herald's correspondence, that taking the report as a whole, the impression is that the stationery contractors executed their contract faithfully, though the contractors were offered an opportunity for making large and profitable bargains, and, of course, expected to improve the opportunity. This is the sum and substance of the correspondent's conclusion. Now, there are facts—shown to be facts by the testimony of men among the highest in the patent office, and figures, which, as a general thing, don't lie, to corroborate this testimony—which conflict most materially with the Secretary's report.

It seems that there have been charged to the patent office during the year immediately prior to the present commissioner's induction, index books, cards for models, file wrappers, large envelopes for enclosing letters patent to the patentees, patent heads, printed blank letters, &c., from two to eight times their fair market value; and the amount charged for has, I think, in every instance, exceeded by far the amount needed or used in the office; and in most instances it is shown that either the contractors have not furnished the complement charged for, or the patent office used last year for improper purposes the deficiency, in the amounts charged for, now existing in the office. For instance, the patent office has been charged for 46 caveat books, varying at $40 and $41, which are worth only $20 each, and the number used and on hand does not exceed 8. Cards for models—small bits of pasteboard, having the year indicated upon them, to be attached to the models deposited in the office—are charged the office 150,000 in number at $40 per thousand, eight times their value. But the patent office has no need of 150,000 of those cards a year, and has, in fact, used only 30,000 the last year. 500,000 printed blank letters at rates double their value have been charged, while the demand, per testimony of Mr Morley does not exceed 500 per day, which amounts to less than two hundred thousand a year.

The above is sufficient to indicate that there is need of a thorough investigation in this contract system with the government. I am sure the present commissioner of patents will ventilate matters in his office before he is through.

The National Woman's Suffrage Convention.

This convention, after two day's hard work, adjourned Wednesday night about 10 o'clock, to meet at the Capital, again, one year hence.

Undoubtedly the cause is gaining friends. The sessions were all largely attended by all classes of the people of Washington, more especially by the most intelligent classes, including members of congress and their families and the chiefs and clerks of the bureaus of the departments; and last night the great hall was excessively crowded, and some persons were unable to get in. Another indication of growing favor was the total absence of disrespectful manifestations from first to last. Mrs. Elizabeth Cady Stanton delivered a written and able speech on the first night, and Parker Pillsbury on the last night. The rest of the speaking was extemporaneous. The lady speakers show themselves as capable of earning, in public, the reputation they have always had in private, of being good talkers. For the most part they evinced good sense, too, quite equal to that of a similar convention of our own sex.

Part of the first day and evening Senator Pomeroy, the president of the convention, occupied the chair; but in the evening Miss Susan B Anthony—the business manager of all Women's Rights matters in this country by the authority of her greater efficiency than any other woman who takes so earnest an interest in them—having asked him for a $1,000 contribution, if he was the rich man he was reported to be, he did not make his appearance again. Perhaps he thought his blushing honors weightier than he cared to bear.

Miss Anthony, by the way, is a person worth your reader's acquaintance. Her name is destined to go down to posterity indissolubly linked with the cause of American women's political enfranchisement, as Lincoln's with negro emancipation. She is a tall, large framed woman, not less than 5 feet 6 inches in height, I guess. Her figure is but moderately rounded—much more suggestive of action than ease, in keeping with her plain, strong, unimaginative, work day face. Her face has a width across the cheek bones well proportioned to its length, but is a little too wide at the outer angle of the lower jaw for symmetry, or the admired oval female face. The chin is prominent and pointed. The mouth is rather wide, and a little flexed, except at the corners which are slightly drawn down. The lips are thinnish. The upper front teeth turn inwards, as if to fit inside of the lower ones. All the exposed teeth are fine; but they join the straight line of the mouth, the long upper lip and the relatively short and compressed nore, in giving a sharp, almost snarling, character to the face. This expression is given perhaps its true meaning—the meaning given by her philanthropic career—when she smiles. The smile sends a silvery lining athwart the cloud, and sets her sharpness in the ligh of resistant solicitude for those she conceives to be oppressed, as a mother—whether human or brute—throws herself into a protecting attitude at the threatening of her young.

Miss Anthony's head is of the long and high type, straight at the sides and rising from the middle, where it is indented—at veneration—to the crown—the assigned habitation of firmness, conscientiousness and self esteem. Her forehead is broad, high, even, and square. Her head is large. Her pioneer character and career are due to no extraordinary benevolence, or love of novelty, or notoriety, or to a poetical imagination or temperament; but it was suggested in the first place, by her want of reverence for conventional things—her disposition to subject every thing to the test of her own understanding before she would accept it. Then finding, on inquiry, that her strong sense of justice was violated her powerful will and powerful physique have sustained her efficient intellect, in devising and prosecuting measures of resistance. She is superior even in kindly feelings. But hundreds of women live in every community possessed of equaly kind and commiserative feelings, who never have dreamt of advocating Woman's Suffrage.

Her hair is brown, arranged in plain bands over her temples and ears, the back hair wound round in a circle something after the prevailing fashion. She wore a black silk dress, sparely trimmed with bead ornament. A large mosaic broach fastened a lace collar and a small gold chain descended in several strands from her neck to the watch in her belt.

She is independent yet circumspect, thoroughly honest, and direct; strong willed, and impatient of restraint, except it come through her intellect or humanity; commanding, yet considerate; intellectual, active, strong, persistent, enduring—in a word, a great woman—in a plain way—doing a great work for the women of this country industrially, and socially, no less than politically.

We had feared that the elections had so demoralized the copperheads in the legislature that they had forgotten their own nature. But it is all right. One at least has recovered vitality enough to give a feeble hiss at a bluecoat. Mr Hughes, of Highland county, has moved to repeal the act of 1867 which gives disabled soldiers in the national asylum a right to vote, provided they are citizens of the United States, and have lived the required length of time in the state, county and township. Did Vallandigham draw up that repealing bill?

HENRY D CO KE, Vice-President.
EMERSON W PEET, Secretary and Actuary.

This company, national in its character offers, by reason of its large capital, low rates of premium and new tables, the most desirable means of insuring life yet presented to the public.

The rates of premium being largely reduced, are made as favorable to the insurers as those of the best Mutual companies, thus avoiding the conditions and uncertainties of notes, dividends, and the misunderstandings which the latter are so apt to cause the policy holder.

Several new and attractive tables are now presented, which need only to be understood to prove acceptable to the public, such as the Income producing Policy and Return premium policy. In the former, the policy holder not only secures a life insurance, payable at death, but will receive, if living, after a period of a few years, an annual income equal to ten per cent, of the par of his policy. In the latter, the company agrees to return the assured the total amount of money he has paid in, in addition to the amount of his policy.

The attention of persons contemplating insuring their lives or increasing the amount of insurance they already have, is called to the special advantages offered by the National Life Insurance Co.

YOU ALL

HAVE HEARD OF

HOOFLAND'S GERMAN BITTERS,

AND

HOOFLAND'S GERMAN TONIC,

Prepared by Dr. C. M. Jackson, Philadelphia. Their introduction into this country from Germany occurred in 1825.

THEY CURED YOUR

FATHERS AND MOTHERS,

And will cure you and your children. They are entirely different from the many preparations now in the country called Bitters or Tonics. They are no tavern preparation, or anything like one; but good, honest, reliable medicines. They are

The greatest known remedies for

Liver Complaint,

DYSPEPSIA,

Nervous Debility,

JAUNDICE,

Diseases of the Kidneys,

ERUPTIONS OF THE SKIN,

and all Diseases arising from a Disordered Liver, Stomach, or

IMPURITY OF THE BLOOD.

Constipation, Flatulence, Inward Piles, Fullness of Blood to the Head, Acidity of the Stomach, Nausea, Heartburn, Disgust for Food, Fulness or Weight in the Stomach, Sour Eructations, Sinking or Fluttering at the Pit of the Stomach, Swimming of the Head, Hurried or Difficult Breathing, Fluttering at the Heart, Choking or Suffocating Sensations when in a Lying Posture, Dimness of Vision, Dots or Webs before the Sight, Dull Pain in the Head, Deficiency of Perspiration, Yellowness of the Skin and Eyes, Pain in the Side, Back, Chest, Limbs, etc., Sudden Flushes of Heat, Burning in the Flesh, Constant Imaginings of Evil and Great Depression of Spirits.

All these indicate disease of the Liver or Digestive Organs, combined with impure blood.

Hoofland's German Bitters

is entirely vegetable, and contains no liquor. It is a compound of Fluid Extracts. The Roots, Herbs, and Barks from which these extracts are made are gathered in Germany. All the medicinal virtues are extracted from them by a scientific chemist. These extracts are then forwarded to this country to be used expressly for the manufacture of these Bitters. There is no alcoholic substance of any kind used in compounding the Bitters, hence it is the only Bitters that can be used in cases where alcoholic stimulants are not advisable.

Hoofland's German Tonic

is a combination of all the ingredients of the Bitters, with PURE Santa Cruz Rum, Orange, etc. It is used for the same diseases as the Bitters, in cases where some pure alcoholic stimulus is required. You will bear in mind that these remedies are entirely different from any others advertised for the cure of the diseases named, these being scientific preparations of medicinal extracts, while the others are mere decoctions of rum in some shape or form. The TONIC is decidedly one of the most pleasant and agreeable remedies ever offered to the public. Its taste is exquisite. It is a pleasure to take it, while its life-giving, exhilarating and medicinal qualities have caused it to be known as the greatest of all tonics.

DEBILITY.

There is no medicine equal to Hoofland's German Bitters or Tonic in cases of Debility. They impart a tone and vigor to the whole system, strengthen the appetite, cause an enjoyment of food, enable the stomach to digest it, purify the blood, give a good, sound, healthy complexion, eradicate the yellow tinge from the eye, impart a bloom to the cheeks, and change the patient from a short-breathed, emaciated weak, and nervous invalid, to a full-faced, stout, and vigorous person.

Weak and Delicate Children are made strong by using the Bitters or Tonic. In fact, they are Family Medicines. They can be administered with perfect safety to a child three months old, the most delicate female, or a man of ninety.

These Remedies are the best

Blood Purifiers

ever known, and will cure all diseases resulting from bad blood. Keep your blood pure; keep your Liver in order; keep your digestive organs in a sound, healthy condition, by the use of these remedies, and no disease will ever assail you. The best men in the country recommend them. If years of honest reputation go for anything you must try these preparations.

FROM HON. GEO. W. WOODWARD,

Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania.
PHILADELPHIA, March 16, 1867.

I find "Hoofland's German Bitters" is not an intoxicating beverage, but is a good tonic, useful in disorders of the digestive organs, and of great benefit in cases of debility and want of nervous action, in the system.

Yours truly,
GEO. W. WOODWARD.

FROM HON. JAMES THOMPSON,

Judge of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania.
PHILADELPHIA, April 28 1866.

I consider Hoofland's German Bitters" a remedy in case of attacks of Indigestion or Dyspepsia. I can certify this from my experience of it.

Yours, with respect,
JAMES THOMPSON.

FROM REV. JOSEPH H. KENNARD, D. D.,

Pastor of the Tenth Baptist Church, Philadelphia.

DR JACKSON—DEAR SIR:—I have been frequently requested to connect my name with recommendations of different kinds of medicines, but regarding the practice as out of my appropriate sphere, I have in all cases declined; but with a clear proof in various instances, and particularly in my own family, of the usefulness of Dr. Hoofland's German Bitters, I depart for once from my usual course, to express my full conviction that for general debility of the system and especially for Liver Complaint, it is a safe and valuable preparation. In some cases it may fail; but usually I doubt not, it will be very beneficial to those who suffer from the above causes.

Yours, very respectfully,
J. H KENNARD,
Eighth, below Coates street.

CAUTION.

Hoofland's German Remedies are counterfeited. The genuine have the signature of C. M. Jackson on the front of the outside wrapper of each bottle, and the name of the article blown in each bottle. All others are counterfeit.

Price of the Bitters, $1 00 per bottle; Or, a half dozen for $5 00.
Price of the Tonic, $1 50 per bottle; Or, a half dozen for $7 50.

The tonic is put up in quart bottles.

Recollect that it is Dr Hoofland's German Remedies that are so universally used and so highly recommended; and do not allow the Druggists to induce you to take anything else that he may say is just as good, because he makes a larger profit on it. These Remedies will be sent by express to any locality upon application to the

VERMIFUGE.

The Safest and most Effective

REMEDY for WORMS

That has ever been discovered,

Has been more extensively used by regular practicing physicians than any proprietary medicine which has ever made its appearance in the United States. This alone is a high encomium upon its virtues and speaks the more emphatically of its merits, when we take it to consideration the extreme caution used by the medical faculty in prescribing any preparation with whose composition they are unacquainted. This celebrated specific for worms is used with the utmost freedom and confidence by gentlemen who have attained eminence in the medical profession. Many of these, throwing aside prejudice, have cheerfully given certificates testifying to its superiority. It is used extensively, for the simple reason that nothing has yet been discovered which can be substituted in its place, and is given without apprehension, because every one knows its safety. Every person can administer it, and by adhering to the directions which are wrapped around each vial, if worms are secreted within the system it will expel the loathsome intruders and set the sufferer free.

It is important that worms should be eradicated before they have too far debilitated and irritated the stomach, for there is no telling where their ravages may end. They do not confine themselves exclusively to the stomach and bowels, as many suppose, for they have even passed through the coats of the stomach, and been found in the liver and bladder, causing the most distressing diseases which of course cannot be removed so long as the irritating cause is lodged in these organs. Aside from these dangerous consequences, which result from their undisturbed possession of the stomach, they cause an unnatural secretion of mucus, which is fruitful in disease. In this mucus they live and multiply, causing it constantly to accumulate, and inducing foul stomach, indigestion, and a host of disagreeable attendants, which grow in violence until they either end in a confirmed and incurable chronic affection, or the worms are removed.

In view of these facts it becomes the imperative duty of every parent to watch the health of his child, and to provide himself with this potent specific.—Be careful to observe the initials of the name, and see that you get

The Best in the World.

New Volume Jan 1st.

The Scientific American

FOR 1869.

The Scientific American is the largest, the best, the cheapest, and most popular journal in the world devoted to invention, manufactures, art, science and general industry, and contains a vast amount of interesting and valuable reading matter for all classes.

Among the many important subjects discussed, are steam and mechanical engineering in all its branches, chemistry and all its varied processes and discoveries, agriculture and all improved farm and household implements, architecture and building, mining and metal working, fire arms, manufacturing, hydraulics, railroad improvements, patent laws and the fine arts, new inventions, scientific experiments, popular lectures upon scientific and mechanical subjects, articles by able writers, practical receipts, and household receipts, and many other things instructive and useful to all classes of readers.

Each number contains from five to ten original engravings of new machines and processes, also an official list of patents granted at the patent office, with name of patentees, together with illustrations and editorial notices of the principal inventions. The numbers of the Scientific American for one year make up two handsome volumes of 416 pages each, full of choice reading and illustrated by hundreds of splendid engravings.

The new volume commences Jan 1st, therefore now is the time to send subscriptions to begin the volume. Terms: The Scientific American is issued every week in 16 large quarto pages, at $2 a year, $1.50 for 6 months; clubs of ten names or upwards $2.00 each per annum.

Specimen numbers sent free.

RING'S

Vegetable Ambrosia,

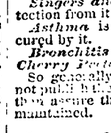

FOR

GRAY HAIR.

This is the AMBROSIA that Ring made.

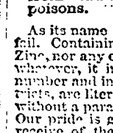

This is the Cure that lay
In the AMBROSIA that Ring made.

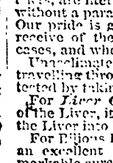

This is the Man who was bald and gray,
Who now has raven locks, they say.
He used the Cure that lay
In the AMBROSIA that Ring made.

This is the Maiden, handsome and gay,
Who married the man once bald and gray,
Who now has raven locks, they say.
He used the AMBROSIA that Ring made.

This is the Person, who, by the way,
Married the maiden, handsome and gay,
To the man once bald and gray,
But who now has raven locks, they say,
Because he used the Cure that lay
In the AMBROSIA that Ring made.

This is the Bell that rings away
To arouse the people sad and gray
Unto this fact, which here does lay:
If you would not be bald or gray,
Use the AMBROSIA that Ring made.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption.

Probably never before in the whole history of medicine, has anything won so widely and so deeply upon the confidence of mankind, as this excellent remedy for pulmonary complaints. Through a long series of years, and among most of the races of men it has risen higher and higher in their estimation, as it has become better known. Its uniform character and power to cure the various affections of the lungs and throat, have made it known as an infallible protector against them. While adapted to milder forms of disease and to young children, it is at the same time the most effectual remedy that can be given for incipient consumption, and the dangerous affections of the throat and lungs. As a protection against sudden attacks of Croup, it should be kept at hand in every family, and indeed all who are sometimes subject to colds and coughs, should be provided with this antidote for them.

Although settled Consumption is thought incurable, still great numbers of cases where the disease seemed settled, have been completely cured, and the patient restored to sound health by this Cherry Pectoral. So complete is its mastery over the disorders of the Lungs and Throat, that the most obstinate of them yield to it. When nothing else could reach them, under the Cherry Pectoral they subside and disappear.

Singers and Public Speakers find great protection from it.

Asthma is always relieved and often wholly cured by it.

Bronchitis is generally cured by taking the Cherry Pectoral in small and frequent doses.

So generally are its virtues known that we need not publish the certificates of them here, or do more than assure the public that its qualities are fully maintained.

Ayer's Ague Cure,

For Fever and Ague, Intermittent Fever, Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, &c., and indeed all the affections which arise from malarious, marsh, or miasmatic poisons.

As its name implies, it does Cure, and does not fail. Containing neither Arsenic, Quinine, Bismuth, Zinc, nor any other mineral or poisonous substance whatever, it in nowise injures any patient. The number and importance of its cures in the ague districts, are literally beyond account, and we believe without a parallel in the history of American medicine. Our pride is gratified by the acknowledgements we receive of the radical cures effected in obstinate cases, and where other remedies had wholly failed.

Unacclimated persons, either resident in, or travelling through miasmatic localities, will be protected by taking the AGUE CURE daily.

For Liver Complaints, arising from torpidity of the Liver, it is an excellent remedy, stimulating the Liver into healthy activity.

For Bilious Disorders and Liver Complaints, it is an excellent remedy, producing many truly remarkable cures, where other medicines had failed.

Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Practical and Analytical Chemists, Lowell, Mass., and sold all round the world.

LOCAL MATTERS.

CITY HALL.—The carpenters have been pushing forward their work during the recent fine weather, and the Hess Brothers, who are putting on the tin roof, will be through this week, if not prevented by cold or storms. We can even now see the fine proportions of this magnificent building, as the frame work of the roof is up, preparatory for the sheathing, tin, and slate.

SHOE STORE.—The shoe establishment commenced by Mr. Pratt, of Cleveland, a month or two ago, in which business operations were suspended by the sheriff not long since, has changed hands and last week was purchased by Messrs. Mausz & Deitz of this place. Their design is, to continue the business at the same stand, where they have a large and varied stock suited to the wants of all, in this useful branch of trade. The new firm are good business men, and if industry and attention to business give assurance of success they are bound to prosper.

During the most of last week up to Sunday evening the weather was fair and pleasant, some days having more the appearance of of spring than mid winter. We shall probably be compensated for this favor hereafter.

The Massillon, Excelsior Works, now under the exclusive management of Mr Edwin Bayliss (lately Brown Seiberling & Co.) has all the indications of prosperity. Their agricultural implements meet with a ready sale, and a large force of men are constantly employed in preparing them for market. Mr Bayliss has erected a very fine smithy on Erie street, and the clang of hammers and iron keeps up a constant anvil chorus. If we had more such enterprising men as are those engaged in making agricultural implements and other products of mechanical ingenuity, Massillon would profit largely thereby. Nature has done her part—energy will develop her rich resources.

SCYTHE STONES.—Messrs Reynolds & Sisler, manufacturers of Manchester Scythe Stone, at their establishment, Newman's Creek, a little west of the city, on the railroad, are actively at work preparing for market several hundred gross of these sharpeners. Having been in the business some time their productions are considerably known throughout this region of country, and there is no doubt but the market for their sale will be good.

STRANGE.—Considerable excitement and talk was occasioned on last Saturday when it was stated that the body of some unknown man was found in a certain locality. Life was extinct, and the general surmise of visitors was that suicide had been perpetrated by hanging. A law officer was busy, it is said, in searching the proper authority in order to hold a "crowner's quest," but curiously during this time the body disappeared—some alleging that the doctors had stolen it for making experiments. Nothing further has been heard since.

THE NEW COLLEGE of professors Wilder & Humer, located on Erie Street, opposite the new City Hall, we understand, is well patronized, and the proprietors are much encouraged with their undertaking. The number of their pupils is increasing, an evidence that our young men appreciate the practical teachings there imparted.

LECTURE.—Last Friday evening, in accordance with previous arrangement, bro. J. W. Sharp, of Alliance, delivered a most forcible, pointed and practical temperance lecture to a small audience of attentive and appreciative listeners, in the Sons of Temperance hall. The basis of his discourse was, that mind will prevail over matter, and in his treatment of the question under consideration he used numerous apt illustrations, all of which were obvious to his hearers, and his positions were sustained by such facts as are familiar to the least observing. Bro S. is one of the earnest champions of temperance, and wherever he goes, gives the cause that prominence which its importance merits. Those of our temperance friends who were not at the lecture lost an opportunity of hearing many startling truths presented with impressive and logical force.

BRO EBRITT, president of the Alliance College, is also editor of a weekly religious paper, the Christian Standard, printed at the office of the Monitor. Those acquainted with Bro E. acknowledge him to be a man possessed of superior powers of mind, yet gentle as a child, and forgiving as an indulgent parent. By the mass of our citizens he is little known here, but if he can be persuaded to come here and preach, no mistake but he would create an anxiety on the part of many to cultivate a further acquaintance. Some hopes are expressed by those here who know him that ere long he may visit Massillon, and if so he will be welcomed by them, and no doubt will increase his already very extended acquaintance.

Travelers upon railroads and steamboats and all other persons having leisure time to read, should buy a copy of the Half Dime Eclectic, containing 32 pages of choice stories, anecdotes, poetry, &c. For sale by all news agents, and sent free to any address on receipt of 5 cents, by S Hawes, publisher. 3t

PLEASE ALL!—That is a greater undertaking than any of us little humans can accomplish; and it is questionable even whether omnipotent power can please everybody. There is no use in trying it, for a good many editors have undertaken the work but failed and if they fail who is adequate to the task? We know of no better way than for each to do what seems to him right, and consequences will take care of themselves. Some of our readers would like us to immortalize all the dog fights, and similar incidents, in print, as they do in neighboring towns for us, but we think we have a more exalted mission than to be historian for such brutal scenes. Others who have tastes running in that direction may gratify them in that way, but we think printer's ink and paper can be used for nobler purposes, and try to act accordingly.

THE nightly meetings at the M E church continue without abatement, and constant accessions are making to the membership. How long the work may be continued depends upon the interest the people may evince in attending these ministrations.

Some forty accessions have been made to the church since the commencement of this series of meetings.

THE ATLANTIC MONTHLY for February, truly has a wide range of articles mostly productions of well known writers. Malborn Oldport, by Higginson, is continued; Doorstep (poem) by E. C. Stedman; Postal-Dificiencies, by E H. Derby. This article gives an entertaining detail of postoffice management. Co-operative Housekeeping, continued, and worthy to be read by all housekeepers; Chas Beaudelaire, by E. Benson (sketch of a noted French poet); Consumption in America, continued, by H. I. Bowditch; The Bee and the Rose, a poem; Ritualism in England, by A Pember; Mad music of the Sea Storm, (poem) by Walt Whitman; The New Education, by C. W. Eliot, a valuable contribution on an important question, and which all should read; Love in Mt. Lebanon, by J. W. De Forest; Tribute of a loving Friend to the memory of a noble woman; the Duchess of Sutherland, by Mrs. H. B. Stowe; Our four Servants; Reviews and Literary Notices. This table of contents somewhat indicates the value of this number of the Atlantic, and will render it a welcome guest to all who enjoy and appreciate solid and useful literature. This magazine is of age now, having just completed its 23d volume; and in its series of 146 numbers there is much of the finest writing of which American literature can boast, and there is every indication that its usefulness will be indefinitely continued. Fields, Osgood & Co., Boston. $4 a year—for sale at the news depot.

The velocipede interest for the last two weeks has somewhat abated, in consequence, as is reported, of Mr. Ryder's new article of riding and traveling being out of order. But this will not stop the progress of the two wheeled vehicle very long.

APPLES are keeping quite as well this winter as their owners will let them. Sound, good ones can be had at retail for one dollar, and they are good to eat raw. Potatoes are also keeping well, and can be had at fair prices, but butter hangs on to 40 cents.

THE NEW ECLECTIC MAGAZINE, published by Trumbull & Murdock, Baltimore, for Feb. is received. It is a beautifully printed Magazine, and its table of contents indicate rich and varied reading. A fine steel portrait of Victor Hugo, the distinguished French writer embellishes this number, and some account of his life is given by Wm. H. Brown. Altogether this Eclectic is worthy public patronage, and we doubt not receives that meed of support to which its excellence entitles it. $4 a year.

SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN.—This invaluable weekly of 16 pages is the best publication for mechanics in this or any other country. We are pleased to know that it is so highly appreciated by the intelligent class of men for whom it is so fitly adapted.

BY posters it is intimated that a band of minstrels claiming to be from Boston, will come forth in the glory of burnt cork, at Madison Hall, on next Saturday evening. Minds less profound than Newton's can appreciate the broad performances of this class of showman, so we can set down a crowded house for them.

Michael Burke, an employe on the railroad had one of his legs so badly injured the other day that amputation was necessary.

THE BELL RINGERS had a full house Thursday evening, and rendered general satisfaction to the audience by their pleasant music, both vocal and instrumental.

Our Neighbors.

A few words occasionally as to what is going on among our neighbors may not come amiss in the paucity of home items.

CANTON.- Mr Nighman, one of the good men of that city, is furnishing a tun of coal a week to the poor.

The papers and preachers of the Stark county capital have been discussing the question as to whether the common schools there should be opened with reading of the scripture and prayer, or dispensing therewith.

Some excitement was also recently occasioned by one of the teachers severely flogging one of his boys, but it is subsiding without the interference of legal process.

A building association is about organizing at Canton. We have some interest in a similar institution here—what has become of it?

Mr Tilton, of New York interested the people of Canton two evenings last week in two of his able and instructive lectures—Subjects—The American Woman—The human Mind. He favors women's right to vote.

Like our city that of Canton is bothered with a multitude of times, authorities differing on that point. Here clocks differ also, and all are ahead of railroad time. But we generally know when it is dinner time, and presume they are equally wise at the capital.

ALLIANCE.—The editor of the Monitor, Mrs. Brown describes a very fine little steam engine which Bro Garrison has placed in his office, and by which his power presses are propelled. It is represented as a finished piece of mechanism, manufactured by Nixon & Co., of that place.

Bro. Clark, of Pittsburgh, favored the people of Alliance with an excellent lecture, one evening last week. Subject personality.

The building association is flourishing.

The three temperance organizations and other friends of the cause from Salem and elsewhere had a most pleasant and agreeable public, social meeting at one of their halls a short time since

SALEM.—Mr. Ed. Ruckenbrod has taken an interest in the Republican with his brother Jonathan, and it appears to flourish. We are under obligations to that office for a neat calendar.

The high school had a most successful public exhibition, according to the Journal's account. Everything passed of pleasantly, and the receipts for admission tickets was $156.

Mr. Pike gave a very entertaining, free lecture on geology one evening last week.

The Journal says the New Lisbon railroad was sold to Jay Gould for $200,000.

The same paper says a smoker went to church, and before entering put his cigar into his pocket, expecting to finish it after religious services. In the hurry of placing it in his pocket the fire was not entirely put out, and during the preachment the owner's coat tail came very near being a burnt offering. That man had better quit smoking.

NEW PHILADELPHIA.—Mr. Wm. A. Pittenger, lately a partner in the office of the Advocate of that place, has just purchased the Chronicle, a paper very recently owned by Mr V. P. Wilson. He sold it to Messrs Hooper and Warner, of whom Mr P. bought it. Mr. P. gets up a good paper.

The last Chronicle tells of a man who got on a spree, and was about spending all his money, when his wife managed to take what was left from him before those robbers, the grogsellers, got it all.

The good people of this town are very anxious to increase their railroad facilities, and the Chronicle is ardently laboring for such a result.

STEUBENVILLE.—The Gazette says some excitement was occasioned on account of the sudden death of Mrs. Polly Brown of Unionport. The body was exhumed after burial, a coroner's jury was impanneled, and on examination the jury decided that the deceased came to her death by poisoning.

The Gazette says the Ohio river is open navigable—not obstructed by ice.

EAST LIVERPOOL.—The Record continues to publish the fact that Joe Larkins keeps coal for sale.

The Record says that their town is improving. No wonder, when we learn of the enterprise and extensive manufacturing carried on there. Liverpool ware is known everywhere.

Bro. Foster, of Wellsville, had his clothes stolen from the line not long ago. The person who would do that sort of larceny may stand a chance of pulling on another sort of line than a clothes line, if he don't mend his ways.

MINERVA.—Bro. Watson continues to make the Commercial a good, live paper.

A late number complains of a crowd of unruly boys, who attended a place of amusement, and were so rough and rowdyish as to annoy all who were present. Minerva is not alone in having such boys.

The court of common pleas commenced at Carrollton on Monday last.

NEW LISBON.—The Buckeye State says, that Elder Harrison Jones, of the Disciples church, has been holding a protracted meeting there, and quite a number have been immersed.

David Brown was somewhat injured by his horses running off the other day, but not seriously, it is hoped.

Mrs. H. Reed prosecuted James Burbuck, a grogseller—the man who took Morgan, so his friends said—for selling her husband liquor, before justice McVicker. A jury was impanneled, and the result of the trial was, that the defendent was adjudged guilty, and fined something over $20 and costs. He got off quite easy. All that is necessary is to enforce the law, and it will make somebody suffer.

The Columbiana county jail is without a tenant, so the Buckeye says.

The same paper states that a number of persons have visited New Lisbon, within a few days with a view of securing locations for various kinds of business. Among others a party talks of starting cutlery manufacturing there. Stock for the proposed furnace is nearly or quite all taken. The malleable iron works will soon be in operation.

Court of common pleas begins in Columbiana county on Monday, Feb. 1st. A long calendar of cases is published.

BUCHU.
[From Dispensatory of the United States.]
DIOSMA CRENATA—BUCHU LEAVES.

Properties.—Their odor is strong, diffusive, and somewhat aromatic, their taste bitterish, and analogous to mint.

Medical properties and Uses.—Buchu leaves are gently stimulant, with a peculiar tendancy to the urinary organs.

They are given in complaints of the urinary organs, such as gravel, chronic catarrh of the bladder morbid irritation of the bladder and urethra, disease of the prostate gland, and retention or incontinence of urine, from loss of tone in the parts concerned in its evacuation. The remedy has also been recommended in dyspepsia, chronic rheumatism, cutaneous affections, and dropsy.

Helmbold's Extract Buchu is used by persons from the ages of 25 to 25, and from 35 to 55, or in the decline or change of life; after confinement or labor pains, bed wetting in child en.

Helmbold's Fluid Extract Buchu, in affections peculiar to females, is unequaled by any other preparation, as in Chlorosis, or retention, painfulness, or suppression of customary evacuations, ulcerated or schirrus state of the uterus, and all complaints incident to the sex, whether arising from habits of dissipation, imprudence in, or the decline or change of life.

Diseases of the bladder, kidneys, gravel, and dropsical swellings,—This medicine increases the power of digestion and excites the absorbents into healthy action, by which the watery or calcareous deposit ons, and all unnatural enlargements are reduced, as well as pain, and all emotion.

Helmbold's Extract Buchu has cured every case of diabetes in which it has been given. Irritation of the neck of the bladder, and inflamation of the kidneys, ulceration of the kidneys and bladder, retention of urine, diseases of the prostate gland, stone in the bladder, calculus, gravel, brick dust deposit, and mucus or milky discharges, and for enfeebled and delicate constitutions, of both sexes, attended with the following symptoms: Indisposition to exertion, loss of power, loss of memory, difficulty of breathing, weak nerves, trembling, horror of disease, wakefulness, dimness of vision, pain in the back head, hands, dashing of the body, dryness of the skin, eruptions on the face, pallid countenance, universal lassitude of the muscular system, &c.

Helmbold's Extract Buchu is diuretic and blood purifying and cures all diseases arising from habits of dissipation, excess and imprudences in life, impurities of the blood, &, superceding copaiba in affections for which it is used, such as gonorrhoea, gleets of long standing, and syphilitic affections—in these diseases used in connection with Helmbold's Rose Wash.

Sold by druggists everywhere. Price—$1 25 per bottle, or 6 bottles for $6 50. Delivered to any address. Describe symptoms in all communications.

Dangerous.

The chief danger from Dyspepsia is that the reduced strength of the system may disable it from surmounting intercurrent diseases. Sympathetic affections of the liver and lungs often have their origin in dyspepsia, and may become organic diseases and constitute not only a source of inconvenience but danger. Hence, the sooner treatment is commenced after the first symptoms of indigestion are manifest, with more certainty can the disease be thoroughly expelled. Do not delay to seek advice from unwarranted sources, but procure Roback's Blood Pills, take them in small doses to stimulate the stomach and intestines and gently act upon the liver. Then take Roback's Stomach Bitters regularly after each meal to tone the stomach and assist the digestive apparatus, and you will find the relief will be almost immediate and the cure like magic. The bitters should be continued for a while after all the symptoms of disease have been removed. These medicines are prepared with the utmost care of materials having especial reference to diseases of the blood and internal organs, and can at all times be relied on. Sold by E Kachler, Massillon. 292-4t

Exuberant Health

Is a blessing vouchsafed to few. Even those who have been favored by nature with strong constitutions and vigorous frames are apt to neglect the precautions necessary to preserve these precious endowments. Indeed, as a rule, the more healthy, and robust a man is, the more liberties he is inclined to take with his own physique. It is some consolation to the naturally weak and feeble to know that they can be so invigorated and built up by a proper use of the means which science has placed at their disposal, as to have a much better chance of long life and exemptions from disease and pain than the most athletic of their fellows who are foolish enough to suppose themselves invulnerable, and act accordingly.

It is not too much to say that more than half the people of the civilized world need an occasional tonic, to enable them to support the strain upon their bodies and minds, which, the fast life of this restless age occasions. In fact, a pure, wholesome, unexciting tonic is the grand desideratum of the busy millions, and they have the article in Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. It is a staminal medicine, i e it imparts permanent strength to weak systems and invigorates delicate constitutions. Its reputation and its sales have steadily increased. Competitive preparations have been introduced ad libitum, and as far as the public is concerned, ad nauseum, in the hope of rivaling it; but they have all either perished in the attempt, or been left far in the rear. It has been the great medical success of the present century, and it is quite certain that no proprietary medicine in this country is as widely known or generally used.

Ten lightning presses running incessantly (Sundays excepted) the whole year through, barely supply the demand for the Illustrated Almanac, in which the nature and uses of the preparation are set forth, the circulation now being over five millions a year. 288-4w

Coronation.

BY HELEN HUNT.

At the King's gate the subtle moon
Wove filmy yellow nets of sun,
Caught in the drowsy glare too soon
The guards slept one by one.

Through the king's gate, unquestioned then,
A beggar went, and laughed, "This brings
Me chance, at least, to see if men
Fare better being kings."

The king sat bowed beneath his crown,
Propping his face with listless hand;
Watching the hour glass sifting down
Too slow its shining sand.

"Poor man, what wouldst thou have of me?"
The begger turned, and, pittying,
Replied, like one in a dream, "Of thee
Nothing. I want the king."

Up rose the king, and from his head
Shook off the crown, and threw it by:
"Oh man, thou must have known," he said,
"A greater king than I."

Through all the gates, unquestioned then,
Went king and beggar hand in hand.
Whispered the king, "Shall I know when
Before his throne I stand?"

The beggar laughed. Free winds in haste
Were wiping from the king's hot brow
The crimson lines the crown had traced.
"This is his presence now."

At the king's gate, the crafty noon
Unwove its yellow nets of Sun;
Out of their sleep in terror soon
The guards waked one by one.

"Ho here! Ho there! Has no man seen
The king? The cry ran to and fro.
Beggar and king, they laughed, I ween,
The laugh that free men know.

On the king's gate the moss grew gray;
The king came not. They called him dead;
And made his eldest son, one day,
Slave in his father's stead.

Sunshine for the Consumptive.

BY DR. HENRY I. BOWDITCH.

We have been told by some consumptives that one of the best prescriptions we have made has been their removal from a north room to the sunny south chamber. As we write, two cases come to mind strikingly illustrative of the sun's benign influence. We had been attending, at an orphan asylum, a girl about twelve years old, who had been long ill of severe typhoid fever. She was wholly prostrated in mind and body, and emaciated to the last degree. It was plain that she was falling into that depressed condition of all the powers of life that so often precede consumption. Day after day we visited her, but all recuperative power seemed lost. Half alive, the little creature neither spoke nor moved, and ate only on compulsion. One day, on our way to visit her, we felt that elastic thrill which the warm rays of the sun impart in the early cool weather of spring. We involuntarialy leaped along, and were instantly struck with the fact that "virtue had gone out of us," when we left behind us the sunlight and warmth of the street, and entered that northern chamber, the dormitory of the poor orphan. That inspiriting influence the invalid had never experienced in the slightest degree during the whole of her sickness, as, owing to its peculiar situation, not a ray of direct sunlight had ever entered the chamber. We were shocked, and for the first time considered the depth of her loss, and our own remissness in regard to her. The air of the room had been pure, the ceilings of the infirmary were lofty, the attendants had been faithful and sagacious. Nothing seemed lacking, in fact, to restore health. Yet it did not come. On the contrary, there seemed a constant downward tendency. "A sun bath in the warm rays of this delicious spring day is what this girl needs," we instantly said to the sister superior. This lady gladly consented to the change, and placed the little patient in another room having a southern aspect, and consequently filled with sunlight. The invalid immediately recognized the change, and asked, in her weak way, to have the curtains raised, so as to let in the full blaze of the light. Soon she wanted to sit up, and directed that the easy chair, in which she was propped, should be so placed as to allow her whole body below her face to be exposed to the direct rays of the sun. It was the natural tendency of disease, seeking for all life renovating influences. And we have never met with so marked or so rapid improvement as immediately began in the body and mind of the girl. Appetite and strength increased daily, and with them burst forth again all the joyousness of a child's heart.

Another analogous case, which, although we do not demonstrate by it the influence of the sun alone, we cannot forbear to name, because by such examples we impress perhaps on the minds of our readers the real principles underlying the whole question. A lady aged about thirty, resident in the northern part of New England, consulted us for undoubted tubercular disease of the lungs. Her house was well situated, and on the side towards the south was a small piazza resting on stone steps, which was raised two or three feet above the ground. The winter was approaching and rules were to be given. Having full faith in the divine influences of pure air and sunlight, we directed that she should sit out on this piazza every day during the winter unless it were too stormy. It was so arranged as to shut out the cool air on three sides, and to admit the full blaze of sunlight in front. Here, according to our directions, she used to sit, wrapped in furs, reading or writing for several hours each day during the following winter, and with most excellent results. She was directed frequently to make deep inspirations, in order to fill the lungs with pure air. She was never chilled, because the sun's rays and her warm clothing prevented it. She never took cold there. On the contrary the balmy influences exerted upon her by her daily sun and air bath were so grateful; her breathing became so much easier after each of them, that, whenever a storm came, and prevented the resort to the piazza, the invalid suffered in consequence thereof. Whether these remarks will prove to our readers that want of sunlight may be reckoned among the causes of consumption may well be doubted, but we trust that, at least, they will convince some sceptics that sunlight has a potent influence in raising the human body from various weaknesses that sometimes are the precursors of fatal phthisis.—Atlantic Monthly for February.

Power of Water.

The greatest power of the Netherlands is centered in the Waterstatt, or administration of the waters. It is a power to which the greatest in the land must bow. On those fearful nights of storm that sometimes occur in the early spring time, when the outer waters of the German sea are fiercely lashing the natural and artificial bulwarks which at certain times protect the land, the utmost anxiety is felt by all classes. Watchmen are stationed at particular places, and if they give an alarm the loud roaring of cannon and the tolling of many bells summon the people to repel a common foe. Weak points are watched, and whenever the sea is likely to find a vulnerable point, there the whole strength of the defence is lavished. Strong sheets of canvass or blankets are made for the purpose, and spread over the wound. Stores of many kinds of materials suitable for the defense are to be found here and there on the line of danger. Straw mats and masses of wicker work, to prevent the slay of the embankment from being washed away by the angry action of the waves, are largely provided. The sea dashes up on the dykes with tremendous force, and although the granite covered bulwarks appear like mountains in such a flat country, yet they are at times so shaken by the force of the waves as to terrify the wonder-stricken inhabitants, whom history has taught to fear the element that has hitherto been most fraught with disaster to them. The rivers, too if the ice on the lower portion of the water has not been melted before the ice of the upper reaches, become gorged that they annually threaten to burst their banks and over flow the country. On the occasion of an alarm of inundation being sounded, which occurs under those conditions of wind and water already alluded to, every human being capable of assisting in the work of defence is called to the scene of danger; and not till the tide is receding—the danger being past for a time—have they a moment to think of their own affairs, and even that change of thought is brief, as in a few hours the tide will once more flow against them and menacing the country with renewed danger. In Holland individual interest must give way in the presence of the general enemy.

What the World is coming to.

BY JAMES D. WHELPLEY.

Let us suppose that the solar system moves into the influence of an enormously extended dark nebula. This extended dust cloud is cold beyond conception,—a fathomless abyss of cold. It would strike a chill into the system. The earth would be covered with glaciers; and these would remain until the exhaustive influence had gone by, as a protection against it. This idea, although conjectural, is not in discord with any known conditions. We know of no reason why dark matter may not be accumulated in certain parts of space. That such vortices have existed is certain, since planetary and solar systems have been formed by them, and it is not certain that others may not be in progress. Causes of variation of another kind must be invoked to account for the existence of a tropical climate in arctic regions, at an epoch preceding the ice period; unless we try to account for them by the passage of the solar system through or near nebulous masses of a mild temperature. Suppositions like these appear crude and hasty; though in time they may become rational, when strengthened by sound analogies.

A complete interchange of matter has been many times made between the interior and surface of the globe. Earthy substance, taken from the arctic regions by oceanic currents, has continually raised a belt of land on either side of the equator. This deposit, being always in excess of what is needed to preserve the formal equilibrium of the plastic globe, will constantly depress the equatorial belt, and thrust out the artic regions as they are abraded. By this process, in certain regions of deep sea is produced a revolution of matter downward and outward from the equator toward each of the poles. But the movement working from age to age over successive meridians, must be the subject of large inequalities.

* * * * * *

There must have been a time without liquidity and without the present atmospheric pressure. There was a time when vegetation on the vast scale of the tropics, as we now observe it, was not so active in its work. The appearance of an excess of vegetation marks the close of the larger systems of stratification; but the rules of deduction indicated lead us to conclude, that, during the more recent ages,—be it the last million of years,—organic life has been more active than at any previous epoch. All the natural movements have become more active; because the mass and force of the earth, together with its temperature, have been augmented; and it will not be denied by physiologists that the causes will have refined and intensified the products of vitality. The fulcrum of transition from the grosser to the more concentrated forms of life exists in fact, and may be found in the method of formation of the earth itself.

The earth is progressing by excessively slow changes toward the solar nebulous condition. Its history is a repetition of the solar, and a time must arrive when the surface, becoming incandescent, will be obscured only by casual dark pits in a brilliant atmosphere, a souvenir of the present darkness of the crust; yet during a certain period, within fixed limits of gravitating force and heat of mass, the human race may continue to exist; progressing, we may suppose, in force and fineness of organization. The race will perish, perhaps, in the order of nature, by failure or insufficient number of offspring, a principal cause of the extinction of superior races. The earth must become lone and voiceless long before the incandescence of the crust. Science may follow it into the condition of an attendant star, and then of an expanding nebula.

In the cosmos all movements are cyclical, and recurrent, without change save interchange among forms of motion. A universe which is, in its total, the same to-day as yesterday and always, would appear idle and dull if it were not the footsool of Divine force upon which the creative will maintains a certain equipoise, necessary to the continued production of spiritual forms. —Atlantic Monthly for February

Prints on Apples and Pears.

The Charleston Courier says a friend who has lately been on a visit to the Hub of the Universe, writes thus: I have just seen a novel and fanciful idea developed on pears and apples in the orchard of a friend at West Roxbury, Mass. As you ramble among the trees you are ever and anon saluted by an inscription upon the fruit, done as it were by the hands of nature herself. On some you will find the names of Seymour and Blair, for my friend is a staunch democrat of the conservative or state right school. Here you meet with the familiar names of Mary or Alice or a date (1868)—in brief, everything that may suggest itself to your taste or fancy; and all done in the skin of the fruit without foreign abrasion. The discovery was made by the Hon Anther W Austin, of West Roxbury, in 1851-2. He observed, during the former year, that apples did not redden in that part of the fruit where a leaf happened to lie upon it. In 1852, he cut out the letters from newspapers, and when the apples were yet green, he pasted them with such as the apothecaries use, made of Gum Tragacanth. The apples would redden in all parts not covered by the pasted letters. When the fruit had reddened to perfection the letters were removed, and they would appear permanently outlined in green. So when he pasted on the apple a paper in which the letters were cut out, the part covered with paper would be green, and the letters would appear distinctly turning red in the green ground surrounding them. The experiment is a very pretty one, and produces a happy effect. Let our fruit growers try it. How much sweeter must be the relish of apple or pear, if the name of a favorite should thus appear on it as if written by the hand of nature. What a superior price such fruit so inscribed, would command in market, and what a pretty present it would be for any lady at a feast.

Five young men in Berlin lately made an agreement, for a wager, to see who of them could keep awake for a whole week. They all held out for about five days and a half, by drinking largely of strong coffee, and keeping up a constant round of active exercise and exciting amusements. At the end of that time two of them yielded to drowsiness; a third soon fell asleep while riding, tumbled from his saddle and broke his arm; a fourth was attacked by severe sickness, and compelled to retire from the list; the fifth held out to the end, but lost 25 pounds of flesh in winning the wager.

In a recent conversation with a farmer in California, he spoke of his 1,200 acres as a small farm, and his 200 acres of wheat as a small affair. Some of his neighbors had 5,000 acres of wheat, and the yield was from 20 to 40 bushels to the acre. The highest yield he had known was 83 bushels to the acre. The fencing of land was getting so common that cattle could not be kept as profitably as formerly and he had come east to invest in Cottswold sheep. To an eastern man the terms small and great have a very indefinite application in that country,

We had feared that the election had so demoralized the copperheads in the legislature that they had forgotten their own nature. But it is all right. One at least has recovered vitality enough to give a feeble hiss at a blue coat. Mr Hughes, of Highland county, has moved to repeal the act of 1867, which gives disabled soldiers in the national asylum a right to vote, provided they are citizens of the United States, and have lived the required length of time in the state, county and township. Did Vallandigham draw up that repealing bill?

There are only four drinking saloons in Salt Lake city, and these are licensed by the church. There is but one billiard saloon, similarly licensed.—Each pays Brigham $300 per month—$18,000 per annum from five places of business. That is taxation without adulteration. In opposition to these heavily taxed saloons the church has its own liquor store, which, of course, pays no license.

The New Jersey Legislature will probably pass the bill abolishing capital punishment. Senator Howe (of Wis) is expected at Trenton daily to address the the legislature in its favor.

Clergymen and all others troubled with throat, and lung complaints, will do well to try the White Pine Compound. It is safe and effectual in removing pain and irritation. For sale by all druggist.

THE ART OF BEING MISERABLE — Kingsley says: If you wish to be miserable you must think about yourself; about what you want, what you like, what respect people ought to pay you; what people think of you; and then to you nothing will be pure. You will spoil everything you touch; you will make sin and misery for yourself out of everything which God sends you; you will be as wretched as you choose. That recipe, if strictly followed, will undoubtedly produce the result claimed for it.

The hair is not only one of the accessories of human beauty, but is designed to protect the health; as a bad conductor of heat it serves to equalize the temperature of the brain. The nerve contained in the hair tube is frequently paralyzed and the coloring destroyed; but by proper remedies the gray hair can be restored to its original color, and where it has fallen off a new growth can be produced by the use of Hall's Vegetable Hair Renewer. The reproducing power of this invaluable compound is beyond a doubt. By its use the absorbents become active and nourish the bulb which supports the roots of the hair.

VIOLENT SHOCKS

Are often received by our physical system from the changes in the temperature at this season, resulting in indigestion, bilious attacks, low nervous fever, fever and ague, &c. The most potent remedy is Mishler's Herb Bitters.

Vermont has not more than 100 native born citizens unable to read and write.
